

Time Out

New York

The obsessive guide to impulsive entertainment November 15–22, 2001 Issue No. 320 $2.99

Spring fashion sneak peek

Turkey Day
recipe twists

Xbox: hit or hype?

GIRLS TALK The Women's Jennifer Tilly and Kristen Bell
the holiday

Agog, à la goga When goga's Karen Herr, Karen Wight and Adrienne Frost (from left) take the stage, they resemble a pretentious performance-art trio, with their black attire and fluid, dancelike moves. But once they settle into their scenes, it's all about character and comedy. Smart and stealthy, goga offers an improvisational slow burn, gradually and patiently raising the stakes until you find yourself sucked into their world. Does the two-cent whore simply lack ambition? What will become of the tubercular bunny? This being improv, you've missed the boat on these stories. Luckily, it's not too late to get in on the troupe's "girl-on-girl action." See Monday 19.